We also find it the best remedy for coughs and colds, giving certain results and leaving no bad after effects. We are never without it in the house." For sale by L. L. AS IT REALLY IS.

The tall, slim, cadaverous-looking man with the hectic flush and the slight cough, the long hair and the black, and somewhat seedy clothing, walked hesitatingly into the managing editor's sanctum.

The humorous sheets call it "sanctum," anyhow, and they ought to know. As a straight matter of fact, however, the managing editor's den is usually a room exposed to all the winds of heaven, so to speak, to which all hands, fore and aft, resort when they've no other place to go, and wherein they sit upon the edge of the managing editor's desk, when he's trying to arrange a make-up scheme, and breathe their hot breath upon his hair and tell him the troubled, vicissitudinous stories of their lives.

The managing editor looked up amiably at the apparition of the cadaverous-looking man. It is true that managing editors are invariably portrayed with heavy scowls upon their countenances and with their hands reaching for vicious-looking paste pots and scissors and other throwable impedimenta. But it doesn't matter how they are invariably portrayed, so long as the facts are narrated.

The managing editor looked up with a courteous smile. The man with the hectic flush gave a slight cough. He did not bestow the cough upon anybody in particular, but he gave it.

Then he reached into the breast pocket of his seedy-looking coat and produced a roll of manuscript.

"I have here, Mr. Closeforms," he said, in a sepulchral tone, "a poem upon autumn which I beg leave to submit to your consideration."

The managing editor—
Now, just wait a minute.

If the writer of this absolutely veracious story were to yield to the temptation to depart from the facts, and to follow in the beaten path of the professional laugh-provokers, he would, in order to attempt to make a little hit for himself go on to narrate—

How the managing editor's face suddenly assumed an expression of the most appalling ferocity.

How, thrusting forth his foot, the managing editor stepped upon a spring which hurled the cadaverous-looking poet out of the door and down the elevator shaft, with much low-comedy breaking of glass and other "business" of that description.

Or he would exhibit the frenzied managing editor in the act of leaping over his desk and grabbing hold of the man with the sepulchral voice, pounding his unfortunate head against the wall with sufficient force to make large indentations therein, and finally hurling him to the floor and stamping upon him with hob-nailed brogans.

Or he would show the managing editor in the act of summoning four huge ex-movers of pianos, who would promptly proceed to cave in each and every vat in the frame of the wretched victim of the poetic fever.

Or, finally, he would cause words of the most galling, shriveling sarcasm to issue from the curled lips of the managing editor anent all imbeciles of amateur poets, the effect of which would be to cause the cadaverous-looking versemaker to make for the nearest stairway at a lode.

But the writer is not yielding to any temptations whatsoever. He is engaged in the prosaic work of getting down the facts of occurrences just as they come off in real, everyday life, and not as they occur in the pages of the scurrilously funny sheets that are exuded from the color presses.

Therefore—
"Ah," observed the managing editor to the cadaverous-looking man, cordially motioning him to a seat. "That's good. We've been a little shy on seasonal verse lately, and I'm glad that you've got something for us."

The cadaverous-looking man, who happened to be not only a producer of fluent and elegant verse, but a well-known operator in real estate, and worth $478,000 at the very lowest estimate, and a man who stood extremely well with everybody connected with the newspaper, upstairs and down—the cadaverous-looking man sat down, coughed slightly in the bowl of his hat, and twiddled his thumbs in an easy sort of way. "Um," murmured the managing editor, as he ran over the manuscript of the poem on autumn, "some tender and touching sentiment in this, I perceive—'mournful breeze and swirling leaves'—'russet brown through all the town'—'cold gray skies and autumn sighs'—'the last sweet rose and the garden hose'—um!—charming. We'll just run this in large double column form in script type, on the first page of the supplement section, Mr. Snagrhyne, and I'm mighty glad you brought it along to us—we were in need of just that feature at this time. By the way, how is that little deal of yours in 'Teenth street extended making out? Getting money in bunches, eh? Ah, a clever little lot-selling scheme, that, Mr. Snagrhyne—foxy move from the beginning!"

Then the cadaverous-looking man smiled a slow, crafty smile, asked the managing editor if he could spare a couple of minutes to run down to the street level to see if they couldn't find something moist somewhere or another, and upon the managing editor courteously declining upon the ground of pressure of work, took his departure.

The above is the way the occurrence occurred.

The narrative may not—in fact, it does not—conform to the rules and regulations set up by the funny persons of the Ichthyosaurian age and strictly adhered to by the vast majority of professional comic individuals ever since.

But that can't be helped.—Washington Star.

BAD STOMACH

Attended with tainted, offensive, or foul breath, bitter taste, especially in the morning, furred tongue, sick or bilious headaches, poor or irregular appetite, sour stomach, "water brash," constipation with strong tendency to "the blues," or dyspepsia, are all relieved and radically cured by the faithful use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. No man can be stronger than his stomach; when it gets out of order he becomes bilious, dyspeptic, hypochondriacal, peevish and "out of sorts"; he feels languid, tired and "all fagged out."

Nothing will more speedily or permanently invigorate and tone into action, liver and bowels than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is compounded from the active medicinal principles extracted from native medicinal plants, without the use of alcohol, not a drop of which enters into its composition. The benefit felt from its use is not, therefore, due to alcoholic exhilaration, and consequently of short duration, but is enduring and permanent.

The great majority of diseases have their inception in a bad stomach, indigestion, biliousness and impure blood. Among these diseases are deadly consumption, nerve-racking, brain-wrecking nervous prostration and exhaustion, body-torturing rheumatism, insanity, breeding neuralgia, emaciating malaria and all manner of disfiguring blood and skin diseases. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a cure for all these diseases, if taken in anything like reasonable time. It is not a cure-all, but cures the diseases mentioned for the reason that they are caused and aggravated by the same disorders. It makes the appetite keen, the digestion perfect, the liver active, the blood pure and builds firm flesh and healthy nerve fiber. Don't be wheedled by a penny-grabbing dealer into taking something else said to be "just as good," only that he may make a greater profit. There's nothing "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery," with its record of cures extending over a third of a century.

A Great Sufferer Cured.

"Dear Sir—My health is better now than it has been before for many years, and I owe to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery a debt of gratitude. I was, for several years, troubled with severe stomach trouble, sick, headache and nervousness. Could not eat anything without experiencing the most agonizing pain. Had little appetite and was frequently nauseated. My sick headaches were most violent and I could not rest night or day. I became emaciated and thoroughly dependent, and no medicine that I could take seemed to help me at all. It was my father who suggested that I try your medicine and I am grateful to say that I had been taking "Golden Medical Discovery" less than five months when I was entirely cured, and can now eat anything without distress.

Cures When Everything Else Fails.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.:
"Dear Sir—I am happy to say that I have found Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to be a most efficacious remedy for stomach trouble. For many years I could scarcely eat anything without being dreadfully distressed at once, and was apt to vomit the food. I used various medicines without good effect. Later I bought a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it proved so satisfactory that I bought several more bottles of the medicine and used it until I was entirely well. That was about four months. You may count on me for a staunch friend to 'Golden Medical Discovery,' also to your Sanitarium, which I know to be one of the best in the country."

When the "Golden Medical Discovery" is not quite laxative enough, as in obstinate constipation, the little, pleasant, sugar-coated "Pellets" should be taken to aid the "Discovery." One or two for a laxative, two to four for a cathartic. They alone have been known to cure many bad cases of stomach trouble, dyspepsia and indigestion. They act on the liver and regulate the bowels. Put up in glass vials, corked, therefore, always fresh and reliable. Pleasant Pellets.
